Her reply is vastly more remarkable for thereby prove to those who live in poverty what it does not, than for what it does, in Irish cities and towns that the Irish what it does not, than for what it does, contain. It is profuse in pacific professions; it is absolutely deficient in concrete statement of terms. It begins with a lietate in the crisis which led up to the war that in the crisis which led up to the war the Kaiser's efforts, up to the last moment, were directed towards settling the conflict by peaceful means. It proceeds with an expression of agreement with the Pope's conviction that in future "the material power of arms must be superseded by the moral power of right." It concludes with the hope that the Allies also may see in the ideas submitted by the Pope a suitable basis for the discussion of peace. Only in that indirect reference does the reply recognise that the Pope's Note itself defined certain necessary preliminaries to the realisation of its leading idea of disarmament and arbitration. Nowhere in the German reply is there any mention, not merely fined certain necessary preliminaries to the realisation of its leading idea of disarmament and arbitration. The Allies' first condition of peace is "restitution." It is not, it cannot be, a "restitution." It is not, it cannot be, a matter for discussion. It is a matter for acceptance without question. Until it is accepted the Allies cannot begin to contemplate the possibility of peace. The establishment of the "moral power of right" cannot conceivably be based upon any question of conditions as to the restitution of territory whose invasion Germany's own Chancellor admitted to be defensible on no other plea than that of "military necessity." We have had warnings for many months past of the danger of a milk famine in Dublin and other Irish cities and towns, and, as the days grow shorter, the evidences of its approach become all the more ominous. There is a growing scarcity in the supply of milk, there is an upward tendency in the milk prices, and-most serious of all-there is an upward tendency in the death-rate amongst the children of the poor. It is a very ugly fact that there is a reduction of 25 per cent. in the milk yield this year as compared with that of last year, and, if the appalling position of an actual famine is to be averted, the most prompt and earnest.

Fortunately, there are not wanting evidences that such efforts are already being made. Ireland is being called upon to supply the deficiency caused by the great falling-off in butter imports to Great Britain from countries overseas, and this in itself increases the danger of the Irish milk shortage becoming acute. The British public have been warned by the Food Controller to practise the greatest economy in butter, as "it cannot be expected that the ordinary demand can be supplied." At the same time the creamery owners and representatives of the butter trade in this country are showing themselves alive to the necessity for responding to the appeal to increase the milk supply to Dublin. Anderson, Secretary to the I.A.O.S., has issued an earnestly, worded leaflet to the Irish dairy farmers appealing to their patriotism and humanity to tide the city dwellers over the period of crisis, even though their so doing may involve some slight sacrifice. Already prices are soaring beyond the reach of the poor, and, if the dairymen's threat of a further rise takes effect, it spells death this winter for many a Dublin child. Mr. Anderson has offered one shilling per gallon for all the milk that farmers can supply in October, and fourpence per gallon for separated milk, intimating that, if prices have to be raised, they will receive a corresponding increase. The German Government is fully aware that even the most perverse "pacificists" in the Allied countries cannot contemplate a peace of which the restoration of Belgium is not an absolute condition, and that any ambiguity on the question must make the worst impression in the Allied countries; but it refuses to give the assurance with regard to disarmament and arbitration—with the Pope's Note itself required.

THE REPLIES TO THE PAPAL

NOTE. We are not surprised to hear, says The Times, that the Austrian and German replies to the papal Peace Note are causing disappointment and discouragement in clerical circles in Italy. The official organ of the Vatican has not yet goten, for the texts, it would seem, of the replies have not yet been presented; but the newspapers which reflect Roman Catholic lay epinion have not hesitated to condemn the reflectness of the Central Powers, and to attribute them to a desire to sow dissension among the them to a desire to sow dissension among the Allies. The character of the Notes is, indeed, foundly attributed in some quarters to the situation in Russis. It is, we are assured, insistently stated that the answers have been completely reconstructed since the fall of Riga. That seems to be a very probable hypothesis; but, whether it is well founded or not, the replies altogether evade the most material portions of the Pope's appeal. What is really surprising after all the German talk about Belgium, is that the Notes contain no sign whatever of an advance towards the well-known terms of the Allies. The inference is that Herr Kuhlmann has been flying lites to test his own peoples, and has some to the conclusion that the wind is still unfavourable to concession. In any case, there is not a hint of restitution in the Note, and restitution is the first indispensable step to the beginning the first indispensable step to the beginning of peace negotiations. The Allies are as anxious for a real peace as it is possible to be. But they are immovable in their determination that it shall be real and in their conviction that, without the evacuation of the ravish territory, enemy proposals for negotiations are a sham. The present Notes leave matters as they were when President Wilson sent his answer to the Papal appeal. No nation can believe any pledge which the present rulers of Germany can give, because the word of these rulers, their sense of honour, and their funda-mental conceptions of right and wrong have been proved, by their systematic acts on both sides of the Atlantic, to be utterly and wholly unworthy of trust. We are not going to discuss our terms. We are going to fight until we get them. When the Central Powers are ready to withdraw immediately and uncondiepair the ravages they have committed, it will be time to begin talking about peace. The Notes merely confirm the view we held before—that this time has not yet come.

" NO BREAK THROUGH." Commenting on the results of last week, the Military Correspondent of The Times werk, the Military Correspondent of The Times writes:—We know, of course, that the subservient German Press, taking its orders from the rearest military authority, who will in his turn be inspired by Ludendorff, will talk once more of the elastic German defence, will say that there is no break through, and will conclude that it does not matter. It matters a great deal, or, at least, if we had prepared such tremendous positions as those from which the Germans have been four times driven by us this year, with immense loss of prisoner and guns, we should think that it mattered implacable will of our Commander-in-Chief in France imposes itself upon the enemy, and gives him the law. It is not a question now of whether the German armies in our front will and the harder the resistance the greater the defeat.

A great deal of suc-

concrete forts or blockhouses, or when running away to escape, or when themselves using rifles from scattered posts and shell holes, has been enormous. The official communiqué has told you that our losses were very light. This is undoubtedly true. I know two minor units which lost about 25 per cent. of their strength, both these having places of particular difficulty to attack, and being exposed to destructive flanking machine gun fire. It must be remembered, however, that of every hundred of what we call casualties no fewer than eighty are light wounds. Not 20 per cent. are killed or crippled so as to be permanently withdrawn from the fighting strength. And as a contrast to the two minor units mentioned, I know a whole division which had casualties of just over 300. Against LUXBURG DISAVOWED. reply to an ultimatum from the Argentine Government, Germany has disavowed Count Luxburg.

A Buenos Ayres telegram, dated Saturday, says:—
The Argentine Government has sent an ultimatum to German.
The Government, says a Sunday telegram, has just received the following despatch from Berlin:—

Berlin:—

"The Imperial Government keenly regrets what has happened, and absolutely disapproves of the ideas supresses by Count Luxburg on the method of carrying out submarine warfare. These ideas are personal to him. They have not had, and will not have, any influence on the decisions and promises of the Empire.

"(Signed) KUEHLMANN."

The despatch was communicated to the Chamber just at the moment when it was about to vote in favour of a rupture of relations with Germany.

It is stated, though not officially, that the Note has given satisfaction to the Argentine Government.

Note has given satisfaction to the Argentine Government.

The Charrber, after hearing a statement by the Minister for Foreign Affairs on the Government's negotiations with Germany, has adjourned till Monday without drawing up the proposal for a rupture with Germany.

In the 'hamber on Saturday the Minister for Foreign Affairs made a statement on the stuation. The Radical Deputies of the President's party gave notice of a motion proposing that if Germany did not give most ample explanations a state of war should be declared.

Numerous speeches were nade, and some Deputies reproached the former Government for not having declared war when the Argentine Consulat Dinant was shot, and for not having protested against the violation of Belgium.

Senor Pueyrredon, the Foreign Minister, in reply, announced that he had asked Germany to give a satisfactory explanation, and that if this was not done, the Government had resolved to adopt the most extreme measures.

This statement, and his remark." if necessary we shall also send our soldiers," was received with great applause by the crowded House.

Here also heavy fighting ended in the complete repulse of the enemy. During the evening a third hostile counter-attack east of Langemarck was crushed by our artillery.

SATURDAY, 9.45 P.M.

During the day fighting has again taken place south of the Ypres-Menin road. The enemy has fought with great determination, but without success, to regain possession of the Tower Hamlets Ridge.

In the course of the day three strong counter-attacks at Tower Hamlets were completely repulsed by Durham troops.

Repeated hostile attacks made further south compelled our advanced troops to fall back slightly from part of the ground gaired yesterday morning in this area.

The whole of the positions captured by us on the 20th inst. are securely in our possession.

On the remainder of the battle front the eveny has made no further counter-attack.
